GENERAL EDITOR'S PREFACE.

Scheme III of the Four Years' publication programme (1956-1957) of the Central Record Office is being implemented with the publication of this Press List of Pre-Mutiny records—Banaras Correspondence (179[illegible]), Volume II. This archival aid together with Vol I introduces us to the vast and hitherto little-known correspondence of Jonathan Duncan, the Resident at Banaras. For facilitating search regarding the location, subject, date, nature and extent of the records, this Press List provides the barest minimum information about each document. It is proposed to continue and complete this series in subsequent volumes, in view of the extensive documentary materials.

The present publication contains details especially regarding the economic and administrative history of the Province of Banaras and Avadh in the 19th Century. Besides the proceedings of the Kutchery, the Court of Appeal and those of the City Magistrate of Banaras, there are different subjects of historical interest. These are, to mention only a few-indigenous banking ; internal trade (cloth, saltpetre, opium, etc.) ; indigo cultivation ; Banaras Mint ; E. I. Coy's trade with the Nawab Vazir's Dominions and Nepal ; Stone Mahal and quarries of Mirzapur ; duties on exports and imports ; duties on ghee, musk, leather, spirituous liquors, Gazzi etc., disposal of waste lands ; construction of a bridge by Nana Phadnis over the river Karamnasa ; fortifications by local nobles ; treaties and boundary disputes between the East India Company and the Nawab Vazir ; internal communications ; pilgrims to Allahabad and Banaras ; the Kumbha Mela of Hardwar ; affairs of Chait Singh, the Banaras branch of the Mughal royal family, Raja Mahip Narain etc ; crime and punishment ; the institution of the Court of Justice and introduction of weights and measures, sanitary system in Ghazipur and measures regarding corruption among Government servants. Paucity of space, has obviously involved the curtailment of some other materials. It is however expected that this shortcoming will be made up in the succeeding volume.

Sri K. P. Srivastava, M. A., Assistant Keeper of the Records U. P., with his indefatigable energy has selected the materials under review, while Sri Aminud Din Khan, M. A., B. T., officiating Junior Technical Assistant of this office has kindly gone through the proofs.
